Schools Reopening Under Plan B: This week Governor Roy Cooper announced that schools will reopen under Plan B. Plan B includes a hybrid form of education for our students with both face-to-face instruction and remote, at home learning. We will begin Plan B in Madison County schools on Monday, August 17. Plan B includes social distancing in the school building, particularly classrooms and areas where students congregate, frequent handwashing, daily temperature checks for students, staff and visitors, facial coverings and masks are required for all students, staff and visitors, increased outdoor learning and recreation, and enhanced daily cleaning protocols will be vigilantly implemented. Now that we have the Governor's decision on school reopening, Madison County Schools' officials will meet with the County Health Director to review and approve our plan for reopening under Plan B, and our Board of Education will review our Plan B reopening at their next scheduled Board meeting. I plan to release more specific guidelines for Plan B reopening by next Wednesday, July 23. In the meantime please go to our website and Facebook page for more information on Madison County Schools' Pathway to Reopening.
