WHY START NOW?

You might be thinking that it seems way too early to start talking about college when your student is in middle school. But the choices your student makes now will help pave the way for success in high school, college and career. In fact, the research shows that a student's academic achievement in middle school makes a big difference on college readiness when they graduate.

One of the best things you can do now is to learn more about the options for education after high school and encourage your student to do well in school and explore their interests. Reading this newsletter is a good start! Information will be distributed monthly, with additional events and resources listed below.

FAMILY CHECKLIST

Read up. Read these monthly parent newsletters and go over them with your student.

Offer encouragement. Encourage your student to do well in school and explore outside interests in sports, clubs, and volunteer work.

COLLEGE MYTHS & REALITIES:

MYTH: College is only a 4-year degree with classes taken on campus.

REALITY: College can be a lot of different things - it just means continuing your education on after high school. Certificate and training programs at community colleges and trade schools can take less than a year. Associate's degree programs usually take two years. Many schools now offer courses online, so that students don't even have to be on campus. The common element: learning and training keeps going after high school!

DID YOU KNOW:

Individuals with a college degree earn almost a million dollars more over a lifetime than someone with just a high school diploma.
